The group will be facilitated by Central's faith community nurse, Amy Armanious RN, who is also a spiritual director at Samaritan Counseling, Guidance, Consulting. Amy offers guidance and companionship for those who need help filtering through life's challenges as well as celebrating life's joys. Through spiritual direction, Amy offers people the opportunity to gain hope as they enter into a deeper understanding of self and relationship with their Creator. Amy completed a two-year study at Pneuma Institute (part of the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary) in 2016 through which she qualified as a spiritual director for individuals and groups.
